SPECIAL COLLECTIONS & COLLEGE ARCHIVES REPRODUCTION & USE POLICIES

Lafayette College Special Collections & College Archives provides materials from its collections as part of its mission to support teaching and research. These guidelines apply to the reproduction of these materials by users generally, unless otherwise stated for specific collections.

Educational Use

Users may freely reproduce from collections, provided the intended purpose is for use in teaching, research, or private study, and provided that proper attribution to the Lafayette College Special Collections & College Archives as the source of the materials is made (see “Citing Materials Used” below).

Publication Use

Users may reproduce materials from collections for electronic or print publication, exhibition, broadcast, or other public uses, as long as they respect copyright restrictions and include appropriate citations.

Citing Materials Used

Any item reproduced from the Lafayette College Special Collections & College Archives’ collections must be properly cited and included in the credits, whether for educational use, publication, or broadcast. Citations should appear as:

Special Collections & College Archives, Skillman Library, Lafayette College

Copyright Considerations

Although some of the material in the collections of the Special Collections & College Archives is in the public domain and not subject to U.S. and international copyright restrictions, other items may still be under copyright by Lafayette College or other parties, including authors, publishers, or vendors. The absence of copyright information for individual items does not indicate that the work is necessarily in the public domain. It is the sole responsibility of the user to identify and satisfy any claims of copyright before making use of reproductions beyond the conditions of “fair use,” as described by United States Copyright Law (Title 17, United States Code).

Lafayette College Special Collections & College Archives grants permission for the use of all collection materials clearly under copyright by Lafayette College. Lafayette College Special Collections & College Archives is committed to providing full credit to copyright holders with works in our collections, but we are not always aware of who they are. Users of these collections agree to hold Lafayette College, its officers, and its employees harmless against all claims and actions arising out of the use of reproductions provided by the Lafayette College Special Collections & College Archives.
